

City of Chino Hills Wildlife Safety Precautions

Urban wildlife such as bobcats, mountain lions, coyotes, rabbits, and rattlesnakes in Chino Hills are an important part of the environment. Wildlife experts agree that removing wildlife from the urban area simply opens a hole in the Ecosystem for other similar animals to fill. There are steps we can take to protect our families and pets and allow us to live in harmony with coyotes and other wildlife.

- Keep all pets inside at night or in a safe, secure area.
- Enclose your property with fencing at least six feet high.
- Report unusual wildlife encounters (coyote, bobcat, etc.) to the Inland Valley Humane Society at (909) 623-9777 and/or police agencies.
- If you find yourself being followed by a coyote or any other large type of wildlife, shout or make loud noises. Try to scare them off.

- Supervise all children when playing outside.
- Do not turn your back and run from any wild animal. Leave the area calmly, backing away, keeping an eye on them as you leave.

We need to remember to protect our natural wildlife and ourselves by keeping a safe distance from these animals.
